LAKE COPPERS TAKE A RISE

Sensational Advance in Michigan Stocks and Further Rise Expected—Denn-Arizona Very Strong Feature of the Market with Heavy Trading.

(By I. N. Kinsey)

GLOBE, January 11.—There were a number of sensational advances in the Michigan copper stock today and from present indications there will be no reaction to speak of within the next few days, but on the contrary a further advance is looked for. Copper Range seems to be coming into its own at last and today it passed the $90 mark. Tamarack also had a good boost and eastern brokers think it is going higher.

There was only one live one among the southwestern coppers—Denn-Arizona. There has been heavy trading in Risher and Duluth on the strength of the early merging into a mining company. Denn went to $55 and held strong, closing only a point off. At the present quotations the market value of the mining stock is $16.75 and it is believed that when it goes on the market $20 will be unable to locate any of the stock.

Among the local stocks, Keystone and Inspiration seem to be the most lively. The former has advanced to $2.12, and 25 cents fails to bring out any inspiration.

In the New York stock market Pennsylvania furnished the only sensation of the day, declining four points on the announcement that the road had in contemplation an offer of $200,000,000 additional capital.

Stock Market

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, January 11.—Speculative sentiment upon the stock market today received a shock in the announcement that the Pennsylvania railroad had in contemplation an offer of $200,000,000 additional capital. The volume of new securities thus indicated is in itself sufficiently impossible to have marked effect on the supply of capital.

For several reasons the effect of the news was aggravated. It was a total surprise, as there has been no recent discussion of an important additional issue of Pennsylvania capital. The revelation that the company will be in need of $200,000,000 was accepted as an acknowledgment that its actual necessities have been widely underestimated.

The most vulnerable points in today's market outside of Pennsylvania were Canadian Pacific and New York Central. Northwestern railroads were little affected and the money market was easy. The severest pressure was felt during the first hour, when Pennsylvania touched $135.25, an extreme decline of four points. St. Paul was strong on a rally and the tone was strong throughout the list at the closing.

Senatorial Noise

In his magazine article upon the Irish sages President Roosevelt says the heroes of ancient Erin were celebrated for their "mad roars." A fair imitation is enjoyed by the president now and then when he prods the senate.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A LOST RIDING HABIT.

It Lost For the Empress Eugenie the French Empire.

Even Emile de Girardin, whom Eugenie welcomed as "the grandfather of dynasties" because he had gone to Louis Philippe on the eve of his flight in 1848 to warn him as he came to war her now, said to her very seriously that night:

"Should your majesty appear bravely on horseback in the midst of the people your majesty can still count on their enthusiasm and devotion."

Eugenie resolved to show herself on horseback. She ordered that the riding habit be chosen. It must be all black, of the severest simplicity. And she would just pin the red ribbon of the Legion of Honor on her left breast. Often the slightest causes bring about the gravest results. The tragedy of the empire's last chance, therefore, must be sought along with the black riding skirt and corsage.

By incredible ill luck they could not find it. There had been one, but it had disappeared, "doubtless stolen." Others were at Compiegne and Fontainebleau. They found a riding habit of dark green with heavy gold braid, the costume of the imperial stag hunts. "It will not do," Eugenie sobbed; "it will not do!"

And so for lack of a black skirt and corsage the empress of the French was forced to flee her capital and lost an empire.—Sterling Hellig in Metropolitan Magazine.

A FLY IN A WEB.

The Way a Tiny Spider Imprisoned His Big Victim.

"One morning when busy in my workshop," says a naturalist, "a large fly, double the size of a bluebottle, was caught in a spider's web in the window close to where I was at work. It was held by two of its legs only, and for some time the spider, which was about the size of the fly's head, proceeded to strengthen its hold by attaching numerous extra lines to the two captive limbs, carefully keeping out of reach of the others, which were letting out in all directions in frantic efforts to escape.

"During a short respite in the captive's struggles the spider cautiously approached and with its hind legs got several turns of its tiny rope round one of the limbs that were free. These tactics were carried on till all the legs were firmly bound. It then injected poison into one of the legs. This soon showed itself, for its deadening effects reduced the victim's struggles in a marked degree. The poison paralyzes, but does not kill.

"Shortly after a second bite resistance ceased, and the victim settled down to suck the juices of its fallen prey. The struggles lasted quite an hour. Next morning the fly was alive, and the spider was still sucking out its lifeblood."—Chicago News.

The Missing Note.

One of the leading tenors in Moscow was called upon to sing an opera in which one note was much too high for him, but he got a man in the orchestra to come in just at the right time and supply the note. In exchange the tenor was to take him to supper. The plan answered well, the applause was loud, but the tenor forgot all about the supper. Next time he sang the opera he went to the front of the stage, put his hand on his heart and opened his mouth as wide as he could. His discomfiture was great when the expectant hush was broken by a voice from the orchestra saying, "Where's my supper?"—From Iskra.
